We felt that three children were enough and could not find any good reason why I should not be castrated. In fact we were both highly excited by the idea of a wife castrating her husband. I agreed that she could castrate me someday. Later she left the room for a few minutes and returned with a box of stuff she had gathered together.

Our contemporary horror stories are written in a world where there seems little faith, lost hope, and no salvation. All that remains is the fragmentary and occasionally lyrical testimony of the human being struggling to confront its lack of reason for being in the vast cosmos. This is the terrain of the horror genre. Eugene Thacker explores this situation in Tentacles Longer Than Night.
